Hi,

After logging in again: are you able to add recurrence?
Does the problem happen when you refresh page right before adding recurrence?

Because it looks to me like your Redmine session is timing out and you are trying to add recurrence on a stale issue page.

Hello!
Earlier, there are no ability to make new recurrence at all. After login - too.
But tonight I have setup some plugins and reinstall yours.
Tried now - it works.))

I make after copying folders

```
bundle exec rake redmine:plugins:migrate RAILS_ENV=production
```

without plugin's name.
Do not know why that error was present (
Sorry for disturb and for pore English.
Thank you for your work!

I'm sorry for not responding earlier. I didn't have much time to work on this plugin lately. Hopefully will get back shortly with some improvements in the new release.

Please report separate issues in new tickets or we risk losing track of them and not getting them resolved. I also appreciate a detailed video of the problem, but written reports are preferred. Including attached logs etc. which are incomparably easier to analyze than videos. Don't worry if your English isn't perfect (mine isn't either ;). Use automatic translation or, as a last resort, just write in your native language. We'll see how it works :)

As for the video: can you confirm that the problem described is the same as in #45?

As you can see, authenticity_token is missing in the POST request parameters. This is what happens when I leave a cloned plugin project on the master branch.

The master branch is not the same as tags/1.7, although both are presented as version 1.7 in the GUI.

Due to the above, the command:

```
git -C issue_recurring/ checkout tags/1.4

from the plugin's installation instruction it seems to be a mandatory command, not an optional one.

Ok, I rewatched the video and the problem looks like the one described in #45 (you have redmine_issue_dynamic_edit plugin installed). Problem has been reported to the developer of redmine_issue_dynamic_edit and it seems to be resolved.
